WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 21, 1900.

MONROE DOCTRINE STILL FAULTY.

The attempted sin of the age, the Hay treaty, against the American people and their rights is a thing of the past, for which the people should be thankful to Almighty God. Our deliverance from the wickedness of the gold power should be recognized by the patriotic through thanksgiving and prayer. The threat against freedom and independence, which the Monroe doctrine represents, is defeated and it is as given to the country by patriots of the old school, and we can continue to say we are Americans, who will maintain the purity of the American continent against the foul aggression of European monarchies.

It is now known that Secretary Hay had planned a surrender of the independence of the country to Great Britain under a plausible but false claim that the Monroe doctrine would be aided, because England would sustain it, when it would otherwise disregard it.

Secretary Hay is a foul humbug who would sacrifice his country for less than a song. Great Britain protects, when it would otherwise disregard the Monroe doctrine, is an admission from McKinley's minister of state that we are unable to meet England when it may choose to disregard the Monroe doctrine. It is a proven admission from a man who evidently dislikes his country and its people, and who is willing—yes, anxious—to surrender all there is worth protecting in the American government system, that he might have the distinction of groveling at the feet of royalty.

Another view that may be rightfully taken of the admission by Hay that will show how flimsy the pretext that is given as an excuse for turning Benedict Arnold, is the protection of the doctrine when it would no more be a principle that would demand protection. The admission of an European power in opposition to the doctrine would include its destruction, which Hay was willing should be accomplished under a fraudulent pretext of support.

The Secretary of State in effect had instructions by legislation made in the form of an amendment offered by Senator Spooner to the Nicaragua canal bill, about a year ago, then pending before the United States Senate, to take such action as might be required to close the Clayton-Bulwer treaty with Great Britain, which instructions were disregarded by the State Department, and the will of imperialism Hay was substituted for the will of Congress, and the Clayton-Bulwer treaty was continued to make an opportunity for the subsequent work of the secretary which was developed in the late treaty from the State Department, which was admitted to be the work of that department.

The Clayton-Bulwer treaty was not only continued in opposition to the law making power but the principles therein were re-affirmed and elaborated to meet the desires and intention of Hay respecting matters in the Clayton-Bulwer treaty that included rights to Great Britain.

There is not a statesman who has had anything to say respecting the Monroe doctrine or respecting the ability of the United States to maintain it who has not lusted upon maintaining the doctrine in its purity, or who did not contend that the United States possessed the ability to defend it on both continents.

The first time in history that the power of the government to sustain the doctrine has been questioned had its origin in the Department of State, and came from McKinley's Minister of State at Washington which of all others is the place where the integrity of the government and its policies should be sustained and the man who gave it out of all others in the service of the government is the man who should guard the rights and integrity of the country against innovation or injury.

It is most humiliating to the country to have it intimated by the Secretary of State that the country requires aid to defend the Monroe doctrine, but when it is in effect by that official declared that the people is in need of help to defend the principles represented by the doctrine it includes contempt for the intelligence and power of the people.

It has been known by friends of the administration for sometime that the views of Hay were pro-British and that he was anxious to make a treaty outright, offensive and defensive with England which at this time was in his argument impossible but without his itailon be made an effort to accomplish his cherished purpose through the treaty submitted to the Senate by destroying the Monroe doctrine through a surrender of its principles.

The people do not seem to have an appreciation of the danger that has encompassed the most sacred principles to them that are in our government system and that are included in the attacks made upon the government and its policies.

There seems to be a determination by those in authority and in power to destroy the principles that are essentially American in fact and in policy and to substitute for these principles anything that will give a monarchal character to our institutions which is a beginning that will end in a despotism by over throwing our system.

A SURE CURE FOR CROUP

Twenty-five Years' Constant Use without a Failure.

The first indication of croup is hoarseness, and in a child subject to that disease it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, it will prevent attack. It is used in many thousands of homes in this broad land and never disappoints the anxious mothers. We have yet to learn of a single instance in which it has not proved effectual. No other preparation can show such a record—twenty-five years' constant use without a failure. For sale by Wm. Pfaffner, Druggist.

Lull in Marriage Market.

Captain Goose wore a dejected look yesterday. His whole appearance betokened a man who was deeply worried. A JOURNAL scribe approached him and asked the trouble.

" Trouble? Why, Reno's reputation as a matrimonial center is gone. There has not been a single marriage within the past twelve hours.

" Cheek is thinking of resigning his position and the bell boy has already struck for higher wages. But speaking of the Chinese question, I think the Boers are playing in hard luck."

Here the interview closed.

PERSONALS.

W. F. Asimov, representing the Pioneer Nursery Company of Salt Lake, is a guest at the Riverside.

A. M. Ward arrived yesterday from the north with two carloads of cattle.

Senators Hardesty of Elko and Williams of Churchill registered at the Palace last evening. Mr. Hardesty, accompanied by his wife, is en route to San Francisco.

Shirley Baker and S. Hans of Virginia City are at the Riverside.

Improvements.

A crossing has been constructed across the alley leading to the Novelty dry goods store. The work was done by the county commissioners and is quite an improvement over the former affair.

Otto Hartung has put up a new awning in front of his store on Virginia street. Mr. Hartung is preparing for the summer weather quite early.

Sad News.

O. H. Mack received a telegram yesterday from O. W. Blithen of Salt Lake announcing the death of his mother and that the remains would arrive at Reno to-day for interment. The remains are accompanied by Mrs. Wm. Havenor, a daughter of the deceased.

The funeral will take place to-day at 2 o'clock. Services will be held in the Advent church.

Seeds, Seeds, Seeds.

Congressman Newlands has received his quota of seeds for distribution in the State, and will send some to any one desiring them. Address all requests for seeds to Francis G. Newlands, Washington, D. C., House of Representatives.

Very sincerely yours,
JUN 14/01 FRANCIS G. NEWLANDS.
